Hunt & Hunt's Employment & Workplace Relations Group is pleased to invite you to a seminar on

Workplace Reform: Dispelling the Confusion

The seminar will cover an overview of the Federal Government's impending industrial relations changes and is designed to give you an understanding of how the changes will impact on your business.

David Thompson, partner at Hunt & Hunt, practices in workplace law, including the areas of employment, industrial relations, occupational health and safety and equal opportunity law. David acts for employers in a wide range of industries, including manufacturing, retail, building and construction, education, entertainment, health, financial services, transport, local government and community services.
